

Session # 6

The Cradle of Democracy: NEIGHBORHOOD COLLECTIVE EFFICACY AND THE CITIZEN CHILD

Felton Earls, M.D., Harvard School of Public Health

Mary Carlson, Neurobiologist, Harvard Medical School

In this session:

- Neighborhood collective efficacy is defined and its measurement introduced
- Child health outcomes associated with collective efficacy are presented
- The link between collective efficacy and citizenship is explored
- The notion of extending functional citizenship to children from early childhood is argued
- Local and international examples are covered
- It is expected that the session's discussion will focus on the benefits and challenges of establishing an identity of child citizenship and its relevance to the Museum.
